

Hello!

I am a Korean-American, Iowa-born, Yale dropout who has not only hobnobbed with America's elite but who's also spent a winter behind a bar, serving drinks to scruffy Nantucket fishermen.

I have worn high-powered business suits to work at a Wall Street investment firm, and been a stay-at-home mom who didn't get out of a bathrobe for two years. I spent the majority of my adult life denying my artistic nature and so have consequently flung a lot of mud to see what "respectable careers" would stick...

I am an adrenaline junkie, who has jumped out of planes, white-water-rafted down class 5 rapids, and done some other pretty audacious things all in the spirit of adventure. I have also "settled down" and raised two happy, healthy, successful children and now have a granddaughter who has done theatre with me.

I have mounted scores of productions and literally put hundreds of kids on stage (sometimes all at the same time!) And after 30+ years as a teacher/director/producer, my nerves have been tempered to anticipate and overcome the most daunting challenges — I understand the business end of this industry as well as the creative.

After raising a generation of young artists and watching them make their mark on the world, I started to remember the dreams I once had as a young actor. About two years ago after conquering a debilitating health condition, I jumped into my third act and started auditioning again. It has been one, non-stop ride and I'm having a blast!

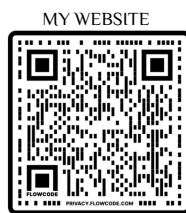

I hope you will agree that I have a unique perspective to offer and would be a strong addition to your project.

Thank you for taking the time to read this. I hope we will be working together soon!

Warmest Regards,

Mona Lim
